'Olde Towne' starts a 'new town'

GRANITE CITY — People of all ages gathered around the concrete steps of City Hall Saturday.

Pink, red, blue and orange balloons were held by little children.

The Stan Fornaszewski Orchestra played "Strike Up the Band."

THE AUDIENCE participated in a game of "Let's Make a Deal," sans Monty Hall.

They watched as a policeman turned his crime-solving tricks into magic ones.

And the star of the show was Albert Lesko, a Granite City resident whose entry in the name downtown contest, "Olde Towne Centre," symbolized a new beginning to a town looking for something new.

LESKO PLAYED a game of "Beat the Clock," hauling nickels from one treasure chest to another with a little extra help from Mayor Von Dee Cruse.

It was an unusual scene for the lawn in front of City Hall. But for the people participating and watching, this Ides of March would long be remembered as the start of a downtown revitalization program which would make Granite City's "olde town" the start of a "new town."

Master of ceremonies for Saturday's festivities was Shirley Adams, of WGNU Radio. She gave four McDonald's coupons to each of the audience participants who could produce a credit card, comb, postage stamp, et cetera.

SOME STRUGGLED to pull the necessary items out of pockets and purses, while one woman fell as she ran up the steps to claim her prize.

The big winner was Patty Gibson, who won two tickets to a Cardinal baseball game, courtesy of the Press-Record/Journal, just by giving the initials of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce.

The audience was then baffled by Sgt. John Apperson of the Granite City Police Department. He magically turned a fake egg into a real one and linked steel rings together.

AL ORTBALS, director of economic development, told the crowd about the new downtown shopping center and the planned renovation of buildings.

Madison to be part of regional Education for Employment plan

By Donna Kimbro

Staff writer

MADISON — The State Board of Education's new concept of "Education for Employment" is receiving major attention in School District 12.

Goal of the program is to create new relationships between comprehensive high schools, area vocational centers, community colleges and state agencies, as well as to expand relationships with local commerce, industry and labor, according to Dolores Folkerts.

Curriculum director of the Madison school district, she has told the school board that all districts in Madison County are to become members of a regional Education for Employment plan.

"This three-year plan is a very good one, as it is a new direction for vocational education, and includes reform efforts to support this initiative," she said.

"It is a foundational change, replacing old patterns with new ones. Efforts will be made to give vocational education a chance to rebuild for tomorrow."

"The General Assembly has approved a special $1.5 million appropriation for grants to teachers."

"Starting in the summer of 1986, participants will receive vocational education personnel to work in the private sector to upgrade skills and current knowledge."

"As part of the Build Illinois program, funds also will be available this year to upgrade equipment."

"Through planning grants, participating high schools, vocational centers and colleges are receiving assistance to formulate appropriate regional areas; develop articulation agreements among schools, centers and colleges; and submit local plans for Education for Employment."

"Also, planning grants will help with the task of information dissemination. Early planning efforts must involve local administrators, educators, and business and labor representatives," Folkerts said.

"Through this program, students will have the opportunity to enroll in educational programs at other schools or colleges if their own school does not offer the course."

"The educational preparation is designed for all students, whether they choose to continue with college, join the armed forces, or enter the work market after high school graduation."

On another topic, it was announced that the Madison school district will conduct screening of three-, four- and five-year-old children on April 22, 23 and 24.

The screening schedule will be Tuesday, April 22, from 1 to 7 p.m. at Blair School; and Wednesday, April 23, from 1 to 7 p.m. and Thursday, April 24, from 1 to 4 p.m. at Harris School, Assistant Superintendent Richard Spillers said.

Phoenix gets life from fundraising

By Jack C. Ventimiglia

GRANITE CITY — Battered women and their children will have a place to go for at least a little while longer in the Quad City Area.

Phoenix Crisis Center received more than $1,700 in community contributions while standing at two Granite City intersections on Friday and Saturday.

The donations will maintain the shelter for about two months, said Carol Chiappa, Phoenix assistant administrator. Some $700 will be used immediately to pay overdue bills, she said.

The public's response reaffirmed to Phoenix members that the safehouse is both needed and wanted in the community. "Very rarely did someone not give us anything," said Chuck Buzick, hotline worker. He was one of 20 persons who helped collect donations.

Some teenage boys donated all they had — a handful of pennies, Chiappa said. Other persons were hostile; one man joked he'd give $10 if he could hurt one of the female volunteers. Overall, though, she said the community response exceeded expectations. "They were just wonderful people," Chiappa said.

"They feel there's a need for us," said Phoenix President Barbara Young.

More than 40 domestic violence victims have used the shelter since it opened, November, Chiappa said. Phoenix has additionally handled more than 900 calls and provided support service to women involved in court disputes.

The group hopes to one day attain assistance enabling it to provide long-term, consistent help to battered women. In the meantime, fundraising efforts, support from area churches and organizations, and private contributions make up the shoestring budget on which the facility survives.

The money collected during the weekend fundraising effort was crucial, Young said. "We're not going to shut our doors," she said.

Government overthrows

There is a sad sameness to news of "another government overthrown," "another government has changed hands"...

More often than not, one dictatorship is replaced by another dictatorship but often they are no noble attempts at securing freedom which about.

I watch this almost daily charade with disappointment. Generous Americans want the world to be like us.

And when, like De Tocqueville, I seek the "secret" which has stabilized our country for almost 200 years, inevitably I am led to a faded document which established my relationship and your relationship to our government.

It is no small miracle that 55 men in a nation of only three million people could blueprint on four pages a civil government which would still work when the three million had become 250 million and their environment unacceptably complex.

Next year, September, it will have been 200 years that "one nation, indivisible..." has been anchored in that mysteriously effective document.

The Chief Justice of the United States, Warren Burger, is asking us between now and next year's anniversary to research this "civil scripture" by which we thrive: the United States Constitution.

What is so extraordinary about our nation's Constitution? One hundred sixty nations have constitutions.

That is so. But most have had to be discarded just since World War II. Two-thirds have been adopted or revised just since 1970. Syria and Thailand have had nine constitutions over the past 40 years.

None other has lasted as ours has.

One of the unique features of our Constitution is that it does not grant power from government to people.

Think about it. Our Constitution carefully allows people to grant power to government.

Said another way, an American citizen has no "government master"; government, instead, is his "servant."

If you find that in the least surprising, then you must understand why our chief justice wants schools, service clubs, religious organizations / all of us / to restudy this extraordinary contract which has been signed in our behalf.

British statesman William Gladstone characterized our Constitution as "the most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man."

This living, breathing document needs us to embrace and respect it, to stand beside and protect it against any who would punch holes in it or set fire to it.

Davis' novel interests Reagans

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan handles a variety of roles — president, husband, father and now book critic — with a good-humored ease that has endeared him to millions. Asked his reaction to the new, supposedly autobiographical "novel" by his daughter Patti, the president smilingly told our associate Dale Van Atta that he had found it "interesting fiction" — and he put a barely noticeable emphasis on the second word.

The publishers of "Home Front" understandably play down the idea that the book is a work of fiction. The dust jacket burbles breathlessly: "Patti Davis, the actress daughter of Ronald and Nancy Reagan, has written a surprising, moving and candidly autobiographical novel about growing up in the public eye..."

The book does bear a suspicious resemblance to the life of 33-year-old Patti. The heroine is Beth Canfield, rebellious child of Robert, who is elected governor of California and later president, and Harriet, "a strong-willed woman fiercely loyal to her husband's dream: the presidency," according to the book jacket.

The fictional father's background includes a job as spokesman for "National Motors," which he got because of his "hardy good looks and persuasive voice." In time, "men in important positions said that my father's homely good looks could sell a great deal more than the latest model station wagon," the heroine writes.

The novel is not generally unkind to the fictional parents, though there are some less-than-flattering references to the parent-daughter relationship. So Van Atta asked the president his opinion of the book, which had arrived at the White House a few days earlier.

Reagan's response betrayed neither irritation nor bitterness. "Well, I will just say it very simply. I thought it was interesting fiction. And as to any effort of anyone to portray it as an autobiography, I will cite that line that appears at the bottom or at the end of every movie: 'Any resemblance or resemblance to persons living or dead is purely coincidental.'"

Patti Davis, who uses her mother's maiden name in her acting career, was estranged from her parents for several years, most noticeably during Reagan's unsuccessful bid for the presidency in 1976. She usually avoided press interviews, but when she was quoted, her views were often diametrically opposed to her father's. She demonstrated against the Vietnam War and nuclear energy, and spoke up for a woman's right to have an abortion, recreational use of marijuana and the desirability of cohabitation before marriage.

Although Nancy Reagan barely mentioned Patti in her own autobiography, they were apparently reconciled. The first lady once replied in some exasperation to a question about Patti's politics: "Who would want a clone for a child?"

Patti hopes to play her fictional heroine in a TV movie based on the novel. Who will play Robert Canfield? Years ago Patti told a reporter: "I always had this fantasy that I could do a film with (my father) some day."

AGING GRACEFULLY: One of the safest and most renowned aircraft ever flown, the DC-3, has been in the headlines recently for a couple of reasons: It celebrated its 50th birthday, and it was involved in two fatal accidents. It was a DC-3 crash, in fact, that took the life of singer Rick Nelson. Is the plane too old to fly safely? Absolutely not, says C.V. Glines, a former Air Force pilot who has written two books about the DC-3. "It's going to outlive us all," he added. At least 500 of the aircraft are still flying and probably 2,000 are still operational.

Federal judge standards must be raised

As the lawmaker who heads Democrats' judicial nomination screening, I have opened a debate aimed at raising the standards of judges nominated to federal courts.

In an address presented at the National Press Club and on the floor of the U.S. Senate, I urged the Senate, the Department of Justice, the American Bar Association (ABA) and others to tune up the way judgeships are filled, and to make the improvements in time for confirmation proceedings for future nominees to the U.S. Supreme Court.

I urge a more active Senate role. Quality must be the Senate's watchword in reviewing nominees.

Last year, fully half of the appellate court nominees ranked next to the bottom in grades given by the ABA in the group's four-tiered ranking system.

This finding is disturbing. For years, my image of federal judges was of those who are really stellar members of the bar.

That image, unfortunately, is changing, for me and for many others. Those appointed to our federal bench for life should be the best the legal profession has to offer. Too many clearly are not.

Ideology has a place in judicial appointments but an underzealous Senate encourages undue swings of the political pendulum.

The Reagan Administration is making more ideological nominations than any administration since that of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. I urge the White House to base nominations first on professional excellence rather than first on ideological purity or partisan advantage.

My thoughts on ideology's proper role are still evolving, but I did offer some guidelines. Nominees' legal views should never be altogether off-limits to the Senate, but there should be no rigid tests of ideology. Some of those who criticize the rigidities of right-wing ideology would, in turn, criticize the rigidity of the left. Both should be rejected.

I have discussed with Sen. Joseph Biden, the ranking Democrat on the Judiciary Committee, the possibility of hearings on the Senate's role in judicial nominations. I have also:

1. Suggested that Congress consider raising the pay of federal judges to help boost quality.

2. Urged the legal profession to be more critical and constructive in advising the Senate on particular nominees. ABA's present practice is to be generous, not to a fault, but to all faults. The Bar needs more backbone and higher standards.

3. Asked the ABA screening committee to supplement its report to the Senate with specific recommendations that a judge be approved or not approved. The Senate must read between the lines of the group's report on a nominee.

4. Said the administration should be more aggressive in nominating women and minorities to the bench.

Privatization could bring big rewards

To the Editor:

Privatization — you'd better get used to it.

Stemming from the verb "privatize," which the dictionary defines as "to alter the status of (as a business or industry) from public to private control or ownership," this timely word and simple idea have produced a raging debate in budget-conscious Washington.

The Reagan administration has included several privatization initiatives in its 1987 budget, inspired by privatization's remarkable success in 50 nations, most notably in Great Britain, where the government has sold 15 nationalized industries and realized nearly $27 billion over the past several years.

Such asset sales are attractive for many reasons. Not the least of these is the prospect of immediate cash.

The Heritage Foundation, a Washington think-tank, estimates the proposed sale of the five regional power marketing administrations would bring in $62 billion. That is $18 billion more than the savings required under the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings law next year.

Budget savings will also be found in the elimination of subsidies. And a transferred asset will not only stop draining federal coffers / in private hands, it will produce revenues for the government.

Economists Ronald Utt and William Orzechowski point out that the Postal Service's private competitors pay $400 million a year in taxes. With its revenue base, a privatized Postal Service would pay over $1 billion annually.

Privatization addresses the basic question of what government should and shouldn't do. Is the government the most efficient allocator of resources? Can the market be trusted to serve our needs or must we depend on government's guiding hand?

An "aye" for privatization is a vote for the power of the people. As with budget and tax cuts and deregulation, it requires advocates of big government to relinquish one more symbol of their power to control.

That's why it's so hard for Washington to let go of government assets / and why we must pull all the harder to free them.

RICHARD LESCHER
President, U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Faster tax billing reduces borrowing

To the Editor:

Public school employees in Madison County are thankful to chairman Rudolph Papa, the Property Tax Cycle Committee and the Madison County Board for all the work done to combat the property tax billing problems within our school districts in Madison County.

The previous problem of late tax billing caused our school districts (and other governments) to receive their local tax revenue much later than they should have received it.

This often caused a serious cash flow problem in many districts, and resulted in their having to borrow to meet expenses until the tax revenue was received.

This has enabled our school districts to receive their tax revenues on time. As a result, the cash flow problems have been eased, and there is less need to borrow in the form of tax anticipation warrants.

All of our school districts, as well as the taxpayers, benefit from these efforts.

Many local tax dollars, which previously went to pay interest in connection with short-term borrowing, can now be channeled more productively and efficiently into the schools' instructional programs.

Youth dance clears hurdles

By BILL MILLIGAN

GRANITE CITY — The national insurance crisis struck close to home for the Granite City Youth Council this week.

The 24-member council, formed last October by Mayor Von Dee Cruse, hit an unexpected snag while trying to organize its first program.

The mayor established two councils, one each for junior high and high school students. Both groups distributed questionnaires to students asking what types of activities they would be interested in attending.

As a result of the survey, the high school council organized a dance April 4 as its inaugural event.

Unfortunately, the township hall was already booked that night.

"We have to get our scheduling right," said Mayor Cruse. "The township hall will be available in the future."

At a special school board meeting March 13, the council received permission to use Frather School, on condition that it provide adequate insurance for the dance.

At the time, it seemed like a moot question. Prior to the meeting, the youth council could find no insurance carriers willing to write a one night policy.

Board President Dewey Melton suggested declaring the event a school function and providing the insurance coverage.

District 9 is self insured for the first $100,000 loss to buildings. Granting permission for the dance would have increased the district's present exposure.

"I'd be in favor of the program if our insurance companies approve it," said David Partney.

"What happens when the Lions or anyone else can't get insurance to hold a dance," asked board member Kelly Hogan.

Melton said it would be a moot point because he didn't think the council could afford insurance.

The youth council is funded by an Illinois Municipal League grant specifically for youth activity groups. The group has a $5,000 budget this year.

Mayor Cruse said Friday the group was a township organization and would be covered by township insurance.

"We will cover them," Cruse said. "We have an enthusiastic group. We want to keep the ball rolling."

The dance will be from 8:30 p.m. until midnight at the Frather School gym. Only Granite City students are invited.

University may widen search for chancellor

A trustee of Southern Illinois University (SIU) Thursday denied that the search for a new chancellor has stalled, but said candidates outside of three finalists might be interviewed.

"The search is not on hold," said Harris Rowe, chairman of the SIU Board of Trustees. "We're still making some progress."

Rowe said the board might interview more candidates, though it already has three finalists. "I don't think you should preclude us from the possibility," he said.

He made his remarks after a board meeting on the Edwardsville campus. The board must find a replacement for Kenneth "Buzz" Shaw, who became president of the University of Wisconsin in January. Rowe last month said he hoped a new chancellor could be named Thursday, though the date would be difficult to meet. He said trustees are still trying to meet an April 15 deadline set several months ago.

Reference checks on the finalists are still being made, Rowe said.

Salaries have not been discussed, he said. He declined to speculate on the chances of one of the finalists becoming chancellor.

One finalist dropped out earlier this month, leaving three. John H. Keiser decided he wanted to retain his post as president of Boise State University in Idaho.

Two of the finalists would not accept the post without visiting the campuses, at Edwardsville and Carbondale, Rowe said. He said he would expect difficulties negotiating a salary with at least one of the candidates.

Shaw's salary was $101,000. "There has been no acrimony among the trustees," Rowe added. "The search has gone marvelously well."

The board met in closed session Wednesday night to discuss the search. On Thursday, it met in private with an advisory committee composed of students, faculty and staff from both campuses.

John Meisel, an SIU professor and chairman of the committee, declined to comment on the session. He said only that the search is progressing and that he expects to meet with the trustees again. SIU President Earl Lazerson and SIUC President Albert Sorenson have said they are not interested in becoming chancellor.

The board is using a consulting firm to aid in the search. The firm helped narrow the field of about 100 original candidates.

Finalists were interviewed extensively by the board and advisory committee last month at a hotel near Lambert-St. Louis International Airport.

In other action, tuition at Southern Illinois University will rise 6 percent starting this summer.

The SIU board passed the hike Thursday because of recom-modations by the Illinois Board of Higher Education. The increase will generate $2 million for the SIU system.

"I wish we didn't have to see this item year after year," Rowe said. He said trustees have tried to "keep it as small as we possibly can."

At SIUE, undergraduate tuition for full-time students who are Illinois residents will rise $59, from $986 to $1,045.

Graduate tuition will jump $63 from $1,057 to $1,120. Tuition at the School of Dental Medicine in Alton will rise $117, from $1,941 to $2,058.

At SIUC, full-time undergraduate and graduate tuition for Illinois residents will rise $61, from $1,908 to $1,969.

The board also hiked housing rates at the Carbondale campus about 4 percent effective this fall.

The board decided to abolish the master of arts in behavioral science degree program at SIUE because of declining enrollment and "unclear program objectives."

The program is in the School of Social Sciences. It will end June 30, 1987.

Trustees established a Department of Public Administration and Policy Analysis at SIUE. The department, to be in the School of Social Sciences, will include two existing graduate programs: the master's in public administration and the master's in urban affairs and policy analysis.

Two named to receive SIU awards

A district union leader and the president of an area construction company have been named to receive Distinguished Service awards at SIUE.

Approval was granted Thursday by the Board of Trustees to present the awards at the June 14 commencement to Robert A. Weis, Granite City, president of Bricklayers District Council No. 2 of Southwest Illinois, and Byron L. Farrell, Wood River, president of Helmkamp Construction Co.

Both men are being honored because of their leadership in establishing cooperative labor-management relations in the region. In 1978, Weis and Farrell helped found Involvement and Management Advance Growth and Employment (IMAGE) and have served as co-chairmen since its creation.

IMAGE was established to bring labor, management, architects, designers and contractors together to resolve problems and promote a more effective construction industry in the Metro East area.

Weis also serves as trustee to the Pension and Health and Welfare Boards for various union locals.

Kessel chairman of fibrosis event

The voice of the St. Louis baseball Cardinals, Jack Buck, chairman of the Gateway Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, today named Steven Kessel as chairman of the CF Bike-A-Thon in Granite City. Kessel will be conducting the bike-a-thon this spring to raise funds which will support research and care for children affected by cystic fibrosis.

CF is a fatal lung and digestive disease that affects one in every 1,600 babies born in the U.S. In order for a child to have CF, both parents must carry the recessive CF gene. At present, one in 20 Americans is an unknowing, symptom-free carrier of the gene.

With continued research, a test may be discovered to determine who are carriers of the CF gene, Buck said. Due to research and improved therapy, 50 percent of the patients now are living to enjoy their 18th birthday and beyond.

Registration at Sacred Heart

Handicapped Job Fair here Apr. 11

The seventh annual Job Fair for the Handicapped will take place on Friday, April 11, at Engelbert Hall, 10th Street and Washington Avenue, Madison.

The Job Fair goal is to acquaint employers with the physically or developmentally disabled work force. Surveys have shown the disabled to be reliable, conscientious workers; they pose no greater insurance risk, a spokesman said.

The disabled public is invited to attend any time between 9:20 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. They are asked to bring several up-to-date resumes, and be prepared for light interviewing.

Engelbert Hall is accessible, and an interpreter for the hearing impaired will be at the fair for assistance.

Social service agencies have been invited to assist those who are qualified to receive their services.

A Social Security Administration representative will give advice on Supplemental Security Income and disability. Quad-City Area high school students have been instructed on job search skills in anticipation of the event, and all with handicaps will participate.

Employers interested in attending may contact Carolyn Smoot, 931-2943, or Sonya, 876-6600, for information.

The Job Fair also offers an opportunity for affirmative action employers to obtain a minority work force.

The spokesman said, "The Job Fair is a commitment to assist the disabled to become productive, taxpaying citizens by showing employers their skills and abilities."

"It is co-sponsored by the Parents for Special Education, the Madison County Region I Special Education District (Granite City, Venice and Madison) and the Illinois Job Service."

The fair is co-chaired by Carolyn Smoot, Stu Mills and Donald Hagen.

Medicine Shoppe pamphlets tell

What to do to prevent poisoning

By BILL MILLIGAN

GRANITE CITY — Would you know what to do if your child accidentally swallowed poison?

March 17 through 22 is national poison prevention week and Medicine Shoppe pharmacist Steve Burdge will provide free information booklets to Granite City grade school children on poisons and drugs that pose potential health hazards.

"The pamphlets let you know what to do and what not to do when someone has been poisoned," Burdge said.

"The pamphlets let you know what to do and what not to do when someone's been poisoned."

Steve Burdge
Medicine Shoppe

Pamphlets will be sent home with 5,300 District 9 grade school children. Medicine Shoppe is making antidote charts available at the store for anyone interested in picking one up. Burdge said he will be offering a 10 cent credit for old prescription bottles containing outdated medicines during the week.

"This isn't just for kids," Burdge said. "Old medicines break down over time and can pose a hazard."

Also available is a poison awareness quiz that can be given to school children, or taken home to parents.

"I want to promote my shop," Burdge said. "The principal behind this shop is to provide service."

Don't give the IRS a penny more than you have to. We are not advising you to fudge on your taxes. We are strongly urging you to take advantage of every tax shelter legally available to you.

The most obvious one is an individual Retirement Account (IRA). If you can contribute up to $2,000 per year ($2,500 if you are over 50 years old), these contributions are deducted from your taxable income. If you take the money out of retirement, you can't afford to contribute the maximum you can contribute.

IRAs are only one of many investments you can make to help you pay less taxes. Money is hard to make, don't give it away. Substantial penalty for early withdrawal.

GRANITE CITY JOURNAL—March 19, 1986

Armed robbery at store

A man between 18 and 20 years old drew a knife and announced an armed robbery after entering the Parkside Confectionery at 2701 Michigan Ave. at 5:42 p.m. March 12.

He made away with $30 in cash and $10 in food stamps. The robber fled on foot from the vicinity of the store after robbing a clerk, who was alone at the time.

Police are seeking a man who is about 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighs 180 pounds, had shoulder-length dark brown hair and was wearing blue jeans, a full-length brown corduroy coat and a blue and white bandanna around his neck.

Tamper-safe seal used

Prairie Farms Dairy has announced the marketing of their first dairy product in a tamper-safe carton.

Prairie Farms cottage cheese, both regular and lowfat, are packaged in a tamper-safe carton. The new red, white and blue carton, which looks like a regular carton, has a seal around the carton lid. The consumer pulls a tab, removes the safety ring.

When the consumer selects a Prairie Farms Dairy carton at the supermarket, it will be obvious at a glance if tampering has occurred. Future plans call for Prairie Farms sour cream, French onion dip and yogurt to be packaged in similar tamper-safe cartons.

Police briefs

10A GRANITE CITY JOURNAL—March 19, 1986

Rory Lenza, director of speech pathology and audiology at St. Joseph Hospital in Kirkwood, tests a 4-year old's hearing. The hearing screening is presented like a game. Here the youngster places blocks in a basket in response to beeps he hears through the earphones.

The roaring 80's

Modern society has become a noisy nuisance that assaults the ears

Noise - the drone of rush-hour traffic, the high-pitched buzz of a chain saw, the vibrating roar of an airplane - is an inescapable companion to our technological society. It is also a threat to our ears and our health, researchers believe. Noise and its effects are no longer confined to boiler room or machine shop workers; even at non-industrial work, home or play, it constantly batters our bodies in largely unseen ways.

A few evenings at a rock concert or discotheque, or prolonged work with power tools or chainsaws can lead to temporary hearing loss, said Dr. William Clark.

Through the damage is temporary, it does kill sensory receptor cells inside the inner ear, or cochlea, said Clark, a Washington University professor and researcher for Central Institute for the Deaf.

Over a period of years, substantial permanent hearing loss can occur, depending upon the amount of exposure.

People who don't use power tools, work in heavy industrial settings, or frequent rock concerts will nonetheless encounter some hearing loss due solely to the environment, Clark said.

He and a colleague, Dr. Barbara Bohne, have studied the effects of noise on hearing and the ear for several years.

In one experiment, Bohne spent an evening in a discotheque with a chinchilla. After a night at the bar, the animal's inner ear showed evidence of sensory cell damage.

Chinchilla ears are very similar to human ears in hearing sensitivity, although chinchillas are a bit more sensitive, Clark said. It might take a couple more times at the disco before a human ear would suffer damage.

"It's a matter of degree," he said. "People need to be aware of the fact that all noises can be dangerous."

Other effects of "everyday" noise range from irritability and stress to high blood pressure, said Dr. Gerald Meesey, president of Hearing Con-

Infant lungs cause hearing loss

Babies can be hazardous to your hearing, a Minnesota physician found.

In a letter to the New England Journal of Medicine in 1983, Dr. Bruce Boström reported on an experiment following a young mother's complaints of temporary deafness.

Using a Decibels Sound Level Meter, a widely-used loudness testing device, Boström and his colleagues measured the decibel level of the infant's screams.

The infant's squal ranged in intensity from 100 to 117 decibels, Boström reported. By contrast, a typical chain saw measures about 110 decibels and a car horn works out to about 100 decibels.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration requires that workers exposed to noise levels equaling more than 90 decibels for an eight-hour day use hearing protection devices.

Babies are not the only hearing hazard in our non-working environment, Dr. William Clark and Dr. Barbara Bohne found. In a study entitled "Effects of Noise on Hearing and the Ear," they measured the decibel levels of common household, recreational and transportation devices.

A common garbage disposal may be as loud as 95 decibels, they found. Rock concerts and model airplanes peaked at more than 115 decibels, and power saws used by hobbyists topped out at 110 decibels.

Symphony concerts ranged from 80 to 110 decibels; an automobile at 50 feet, from 60 to more than 90 decibels; and a lawn mower, from 80 to 95 decibels.

A whisper registers 40 decibels, and ordinary conversation in a quiet room amounts to about 60 decibels.

Gangsters, criminals, police officers and target shooters should lend Clark an ear: gunshots well exceeded 120 decibels, the doctors found.

Rest periods are essential in noise exposure; when cutting wood with a chainsaw, for instance, it's better to break the job into two, four-hour sessions than one eight-hour session.

Ear infections

Early intervention important in childhood

Among the many illnesses that afflict children, ear infections are the most common.

By the time a child reaches the age of 5, there is an 85 percent chance that he or she will have had at least one ear infection. On any given day, 8 percent of all school-aged children have active ear infections - most of which are undetected.

Ear infections, while not life-threatening, can be annoying and painful, and left untreated, can lead to permanent hearing loss and delayed speech development. That's why early intervention is important, says otolaryngologist Richard E. Schrick, a Kirkwood physician who specializes in diseases of the ear, nose and throat.

The main cause of childhood ear infections is blockage of the eustachian tubes, which connect the area behind the eardrum to the back of the nose, acting as a ventilation system for the ear, Schrick says. When the eustachian tubes aren't functioning properly, a vacuum forms behind the eardrum, allowing fluid to form. The fluid interferes with the normal movement of the eardrum, and hearing is affected.

"Unfortunately, very young children often don't complain about fluid behind the ear drum, which is the precursor of an ear infection. They don't realize anything is wrong or they don't have

"By the time a child reaches the age of five, there is an 85 percent chance they will have had an ear infection."

the vocabulary to describe their symptoms," Schrick says.

"So it's important that parents get regular pediatric checkups for their children and pay attention to the behavioral signs that may indicate trouble," he says.

Infants with developing ear infections may hit their ears, rub them with a blanket or pull on their earlobes. Preschoolers may sit closer to the television or radio, increase the volume level, or speak in a louder than-normal voice.

Another symptom is a change in napping patterns. Irritability after sleeping may be a sign of discomfort from an accumulation of fluid in the ear. Parents may also sense their youngsters seem inattentive or less responsive to verbal directions.

Diagnosing ear infections is a relatively simple procedure, Schrick says. The first step is to look directly into the child's ear with a lighted "otoscope," which allows the doctor to see the condition of the eardrum. Another diagnostic test is a "tympanogram," a simple, painless procedure that measures the movement of the eardrum in response to changes in air pressure.

Once an ear infection has been identified, treatment by a physician may include: antibiotics; the use of decongestants (to unblock the eustachian tubes by shrinking swollen tissue); draining the fluid by creating a tiny hole in the eardrum; or inserting ventilation tubes into the ears to act as substitutes for malfunctioning eustachian tubes.

"Treatment can start at a very young age," Schrick says. "And early treatment is crucial, because children with ear infections may miss out on important hearing experiences that can affect their language development."

"Many children experience a mild, temporary hearing loss during an ear infection," says Tina Wood, an audiologist on the staff of St. Joseph Hospital in Kirkwood.

"But parents can help their children hear as much as possible during this time by using some very simple, compensating strategies. First, take extra care to face your child when talking, so your voice is aimed in his or her direction.

Though the meeting was poorly attended, Whitaker said word of the program has been spreading. "Every day I get calls from people interested in the program," she said. "The word is going around."

She explained the watch program is where citizens get involved in reporting crime in their neighborhoods.

The neighborhood watch program was instituted years ago in the city, but died out. However, both Whitaker and Police Chief Bill Harris are enthusiastic about the new beginning.

"The neighborhood watch program is a really good concept," Harris said, "and I am a strong believer in it."

Star gives cruise taste of Alaska

Do you seek soul-renewing pleasures as found in the beauty of pristine wilderness and captivating encounters with wildlife?

Then sign on with the North Star as she explores southeast Alaska's "Inside Passage".

The North Star ventures where larger cruise ships cannot go. The 158-passenger vessel makes its way among evergreen islands and cruises far up winding, glacier-carved fjords, such as Tracy Arm, near Juneau.

The Bahamian-registered North Star schedules seven-night round-trip cruises out of Prince Rupert, B.C. Departures are every Saturday beginning May 10 and continuing through Sept. 27.

North Star guests spend a day exploring Glacier Bay National Park, where nature hoards her greatest number of tidewater glaciers. Colonies of birds, seals and ice floes (pieces of ice that float on the sea), sea lions in rocky rookeries and icebergs carved from icy-blue glacier faces. When a big one cracks away and splashes down where the river of ice meets the sea, you understand why the Indians called this "Thunder Bay."

Near Ketchikan, the ship cruises by Misty Fjords National Monument, a wonderland of sheer granite cliffs and waterfalls. Skirting Admiralty Island National Monument, whales may be sighted in Frederick Sound.

New on this summer's itinerary is the remote wilderness area on the west side of Price of Wales Island. The ship cruises Sea Otter Sound and the Maurelle Islands and makes two contrasting port calls as well. The first is at the small fishing village of Klawock, with its outstanding Indian totem poles. In the afternoon, passengers go ashore at Waterfall, a remarkable resort recycled from picturesque fish cannery buildings.

Other shore leaves throughout the cruise reveal delightfully varied Southeast Alaska towns. The convivial passengers don't over-whelm the friendly residents.

Today's State Capital, Juneau, though a modern government center, is proud of its gold-based history as is Skagway, at the upper reaches of photogenic Lynn Canal. The town preserves vintage buildings and boardwalks from turn-of-the-century Gold Rush beginnings in its downtown Historical District.

Among the amenities offered on the North Star - a little larger than her sister explorer class ships - are two lounges, a pool, theater, library, beauty parlor, and large, well-appointed view dining room with reservation seating. Alaska's long summer days - often sunny - encourage outdoor fun, including shuffleboard and trapshooting, on the spacious decks.

The price of the seven-night cruises, based on stateroom calegory and double occupancy, ranges from $1,149 to $2,495. Four-night and three-night cruise segments are priced from $515. All may be combined with more extensive land/air tours of Alaska. Also offered are sightseeing stop-over tours in Prince Rupert and Vancouver.

Meals, entertainment, transfers, and excursions as described in itineraries are included. Port charges, and low-cost airfares between Home Cities and cruise departure points are extra.

Brochures, information, and reservations are available from Travel Agents and Exploration Holidays and Cruises, 1500 Metropolitan Park Building, Seattle, Wash. 98101. Call toll-free (800) 426-0600.

Anderson stumbled on career by accident

Louie Anderson is a comedian not by choice but by accident. "I just tried it one night," Anderson said in a recent phone interview. "We were out at work and there were comics and I said 'These guys aren't funny.' My friend said 'Why don't you try it and I got defensive and said maybe I will.'"

The next week, Anderson was on stage. "I was a little nervous and excited," said Anderson, 32. "I think I talked about being fat when I was a kid." And the joke goes like this: "Most kids in kindergarten take a nap on a mat. I had a braided 9 X 12."

Folks, he's got a million of 'em. Anderson's humor is based on his family life, largely on his largeness.

Like most people, Anderson reflects on his childhood with a certain amount of sadness. Anderson grew up as one of 11 kids in a lower east side housing project in St. Paul. He was affected by his father's battle with alcoholism.

"I think I was basically a shy kid, but I liked people. I was interested in what people had to say and I wanted to find out what was going on."

"I was teased a lot as a kid. I think... when you come from an alcoholic family, eating is maybe the other side of the compulsion of not wanting to drink."

But he relied on the lessons he learned to counsel young people. In fact, he was working as a counselor when his buddies dared him at the bar.

Anderson worked the midwest comedy circuit for four years. He won the First Midwest Comedy Competition hosted by Henny Youngman in 1981.

During the "lean years," Anderson played some pretty tough rooms. How tough were they?

"Once I opened this room with three other comics and it was horrible. It was an all you could drink beer night, and they gave people these little glass boots to drink out of."

"Nobody was listening" they were talking and yelling, and the guy didn't want to pay us. We had to threaten to do the show again. (a pause for the reporter to laugh.) Money flew out of his hand. (another pause) We got two cases of glass boots."

But it became apparent to Anderson that he would have to journey to the West Coast if he were to make it big in show business.

Anderson, who always tried new adventures, wasn't frightened about the move. He had just one thing on his mind.

"I thought, 'God, I hope I get work," he said.

He started as a non-paid regular at The Comedy Store. "That meant you could work Monday nights," Anderson said.

He bounced around Los Angeles for three months, finding work wherever he could. Finally, Jimmy Walker noticed him and he was hired as a writer.

Then things really popped. Anderson opened for major Las Vegas and Atlantic City headliners, and auditioned four times for The Tonight Show.

Finally, on Nov. 20, 1984, Anderson made his network television debut on the popular late night talk show, which is known as a mecca for upcoming comedians.

He has been back to visit Carson's show six times and has made a few other television appearances as well.

Anderson moved on to the movies. He admits that most of his part in the current film, Quickly, was left on the editing room floor. He recently finished the film Rat Boy, scheduled for a summer release. Anderson said the film is a romantic comedy. He stars with Sondra Locke.

"It's either going to be one of those big smashes or a cult film," Anderson said.

He has enjoyed working with his co-star. "She allowed me to rewrite some of the parts and make them funnier," he said.

And now, Anderson has been bitten by the screen writing bug. He is working on a screenplay for Campfire which he hopes to do in Minnesota. The story involves a man who escapes from a fat farm. He meets with kids who are AWOL from a detention camp. They rely on each other to survive in the woods. That alone is pretty funny, Anderson said.

"When I go camping, the bears put their food up in the trees," he said.

Meanwhile, Anderson will finish his road trip in St. Louis. He will perform at the Westport Playhouse Friday at 7 and 10 p.m. Tickets are $14 and are available through Ticketmaster, the Westport box office or Dialtix at (314) 421-1400. Free parking is available on Lot B.

After St. Louis, Anderson will be in London to do a bit of British TV. It would appear that Anderson has made it in a big way. He went up against colossal odds and won.

But that's a philosophy Anderson lives by.

"I think that's what life is all about - taking chances and having fun," he said.

Deborah Allison (Stella) and Jeffery King (Stanley) rehearse a scene from 'Streetcar'.

Reperatory finishes season

Tennessee Williams' A Streetcar Named Desire is an American classic that has been produced on thousands of professional and amateur stages.

How does a director approach a play that is so well-known, it runs the danger of being ignored?

"I am approaching it as a new play," said David Chambers, producing director for the Repertory Theatre of St. Louis. "I'm not interested in making Xerox copies of other productions. I'm interested in producing our own energy."

It will be a somewhat easy task for Chambers. He said he has never seen the movie version and he walked out of a stage production of the famous drama.

Chambers, who directed Twelfth Night earlier this year, was jarred into rereading A Streetcar Named Desire after reading a biography of Williams. Williams was born Thomas Lanier Williams in Columbus, Miss., in 1914. He was the son of a traveling salesman. His father's company transferred the family to St. Louis when Williams was 10. He attended University City High School (the same high school Chambers attended) and graduated to the University of Missouri when he was 17.

The Depression forced Williams to drop out two years later. He went to work in his father's shoe firm, an experience he later drew upon for The Glass Menagerie.

A Streetcar Named Desire opened in New York in 1948 with Jessica Tandy as Blanche, Karl Malden as Mitch, Kim Hunter as Stella and Marlon Brando as Stanley.

Featured in the Rep's production of Streetcar are Susanne Marley as Blanche DuBois, Jeffery King as Stanley Kowalski, Deborah Allison as Stella Kowalski and Joe Aufrey as Mitch.

"They have remarkable courage and it takes remarkable courage to dive in and hit emotional truth," Chambers said. "It's a very raw, very honest play."

But Chambers has a fear about the production.

"I fear people will stay away because it's too heavy," he said. "But this is one of the best-written American plays. It is a masterpiece. Yes, it's tough at points but it's terrifically human and funny at times. It touches on important things in a very poetic way."

Because of the obvious connection between Williams and St. Louis, Chambers said he and the company feel a special closeness with the playwright. He went so far as to say the spirit of Williams has been felt during rehearsals.

"We feel Tennessee is a benevolent, gentle parent," Chambers said. "I think I would like him to see this production and be proud of it."

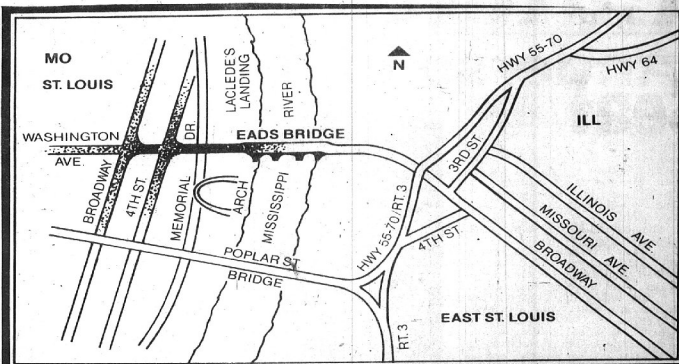

A Streetcar Named Desire will close the Rep's mainstage season.

The play opens March 14 and runs through April 11.

It replaces Journey to the Center of the Earth, which was yanked out of the plans due to money and time limitations. The science fiction classic will open the Rep's 1986-87 season.

Tickets range from $6 to $19.

For more information, call the Rep box office at (314) 968-4925.

From convenient approaches in Illinois, Eads Bridge places the automobile driver at the heart of Downtown St. Louis.

NERVES SHATTERED... TIRED OF PARKING ON BRIDGES, WASTING GASOLINE, AND MONEY...

Then take the fast, direct, economical route from Illinois Communities to Downtown St. Louis Eads Bridge, one of the world's greatest engineering feats, is undergoing major renovation, making it one of the best and most convenient Mississippi River crossings into and out of the St. Louis area.

As this work is completed, Eads Bridge will be the fast, economical and direct artery between Illinois communities and the heart of downtown St. Louis.

For the business person or shopper traveling over the river in either direction, Eads Bridge offers an excellent alternative to other bridges entering the St. Louis area.

Eads Bridge will provide a fast, less congested route between Illinois and Missouri, with an overall saving in time and money, even after a modest 50¢ toll for automobiles, 60¢ for pickup trucks.

Traffic patterns show how well the bridge serves not only local traffic, but also users of Interstate Highways 55, 70 and 64.

It has been estimated that even at times of morning and evening congestion, a typical Eads Bridge user may save daily as much as 20 minutes in each direction and a dollar in gasoline expenses, once rehabilitation work is completed.

WORK BEING DONE

To further speed traffic, four modern toll collection stations have been installed on the west end of the bridge—two serving in each direction. One station in each direction is automatic, providing for collection of tolls without a stop. A second station is manned by a toll collector for the convenience of those not having the correct change.

Entering St. Louis at the foot of Washington Avenue, Eads Bridge is an ideal gateway to the main shopping and business centers in downtown St. Louis, where ample parking is available.

Opened to traffic in July, 1874, Eads Bridge was designed to carry trains and vehicular traffic. The first major bridge across the Mississippi River, it has survived the test of time and is today as sturdy and dependable as when it was built.

Illumination for bedtime stories: 1/3¢

Electric energy makes possible a lot of wonderful things in our lives. It provides light. It powers an assortment of labor-saving appliances. It efficiently heats or cools a home.

Electricity is a manufactured product. It costs money to generate and distribute. To be a wise consumer is to understand both the cost and the value of electric energy. For example, operating a 100 watt light bulb for a half hour costs about 1/3¢. That represents the cost.

The value is determined by how you use the illumination that's provided. The decision belongs to you.

At Illinois Power we'd like to help you get the best value from electric energy. Our Marketing Advisors are available to answer your questions about energy efficiency in the home, in businesses, and in industry. There's no charge for this service.

Towne

downtown Granite City from top to bottom," he said.

However, the most exciting part was to come. Tom Holloway of the First Granite City National Bank and Bill Patton of Central Bank of Granite City carried an orange chest full of nickels out of City Hall while the three contest judges watched. The judges were Cheryl Crawford of Shelter Insurance, Rick Jarvis, publisher of the Press-Record/Journal, and R C Bush, executive vice president of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce.

Then the man of the hour, Albert Lesko, was introduced. His "Olde Towne Centre" entry to the contest had been chosen as the winner from among 4,000 entries.

"ONE EVENING I was sitting at home and I thought, I am going to have to enter it and show them how to win," Lesko told the crowd.

Several of Lesko's family and friends were there, three of them with a sign that said, "Go For It, Albert."

The big orange chest was opened and, with an air horn blast from Cruse, Lesko was off, trying to take as many nickels as he could and put them into another chest within two minutes.

AS THE CROWD yelled "Go, Albert, go!" Lesko took his time carrying the nickels, but as time began to run out, Cruse helped him take the orange chest and pour the remaining nickels out as time expired.

"I'm a little bit tired," Lesko said while receiving a $500 check from Cruse to replace the nickels.

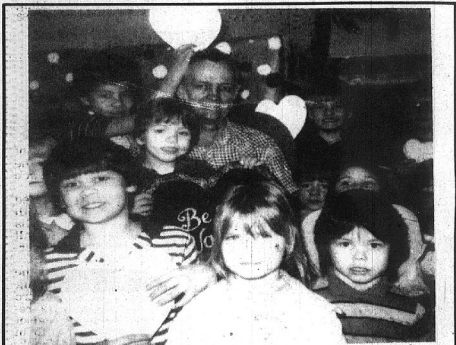

"I plan to give it to a few charities in town that need some help," Lesko said.

A big SIGN, painted by Walter Brewer of the Granite City Park District, was unrolled and the audience smiled and posed for a group picture.

The band, made up of Stan Fornaszewski on vibraphone, Drew Davis on guitar, Dale Wilford on drums and Chet Ebert on keyboard, played "Downtown" as the crowd began to leave.

The party was over. But it was just the start for downtown.

"We're off to a new beginning," Cruse said.

WE LOVE SAM CARSON DAY was the theme of Webster School's Valentine Day activities. Students and staff honored Carson, the school's custodian, with an assembly and hand-made cards. Students said they appreciate Carson's friendship and sense of humor.

The new officers were installed by Dorothy Kerch, a past president of Chapter HT.

Hoop hi-jinks, NCAA style

If this is Wednesday, we must be down to 16 teams in the NCAA basketball tournament. Or, a three-week long journey through the prime time zone.

If you are not yet bleary-eyed from watching the action on TV, just remember, it's not over yet. As the NCAA tournament winds down, the championship is still up for grabs.

College basketball is a unique creature in that a team must now survive a rigorous six-game tournament to be king of the hill. There are no wire service champions.

Just who will win this year's tourney? It's anyone's guess.

Duke, Kentucky, Kansas and St. John's were given the top seeds in the four geographical regions.

The road is tough and filled with potholes along the way to Dallas / the site of this year's Final Four. St. John's, the No. 1 seed in the West, was ousted by Auburn. Kentucky won, but not without a scare from little Western Kentucky.

So far, this has been the year of the upset. Nine of the top 16 seeded teams were eliminated over the weekend.

But, upsets are commonplace in the NCAA tournament.

In 1981, DePaul was a top-seeded team, but the Blue Demons fell to St. Joseph's. That same year, defending champ Louisville lost in the first round to Arkansas on a Hall Mary shot by U.S. Reed.

Like Joaquin Andujar said, "You never know."

The casualty list so far reads like this: East: Regional: Oklahoma (No. 4); Virginia (No. 5); Indiana (No. 3); and Syracuse (No. 2).

In the Midwest: Georgetown (No. 4); Notre Dame (No. 3); Michigan (No. 2).

In the West: St. John's (No. 1).

In the Southeast: Illinois (No. 4); and Memphis State (No. 3).

Along the way, all of last year's Final Four teams, including Cinderella champion Villanova, have been tossed aside.

But Nova has been replaced by some new Cinderellas.

Take Cleveland State. They knocked off Bob Knight's Indiana Hoosiers 83-79 and then beat St. Joe's. The Vikings are 29-3 and making their first appearance in the NCAA tourney.

How about the Navy. The Midkies, who have won 22 of their last 23 games, reached the Sweet Sixteen by downing Syracuse 97-85 on the Orangemen's home floor, the Carrier Dome.

Midnight will toll for one of these two schools, as they will meet Friday in the East semifinals in the Meadowlands in East Rutherford, N.J.

It was a jam-packed weekend. On Sunday alone, CBS broadcast seven hours of basketball action. Three full games and the endings of four others. And ESPN had the UNLV-Maryland game live in the evening.

Quick, get me the Visine. Some observations of NCAA Round Two:

WORST WARDROBE: Lou Henson of Illinois. Put that orange coat in moth balls.

BEST DRESSED: Arkansas-Little Rock head coach Mike Newell. With his tailored wardrobe and suntanned skin, he looked like he stepped of a "GQ" advertisement.

BEST GAME: Navy's David Robinson. He scored 26 of his 35 points in the second half as Navy upset Syracuse.

RUNNER-UP: Kentucky's Kenny "Sky" Walker. He was 11 for 11 from the field against Western Kentucky.

WORST GAME: Illinois' Efrem Winters. He was 0 for 5 from the field and had his last shot as a collegian blocked. The Illini lost to Alabama 88-56.

BEST LOCATION SHOTS: Scenes from the Cleveland State campus after the Vikings beat Indiana in the first round. They were dancing in the streets.

BEST COMMENT: NC State Coach Jim Valvano. "I ripped my pants in the first round. I lost my jacket in this game. By the time the tournament ends I'll be naked."

SWEETEST REVENGE: Iowa State's Johnny Orr. His Cyclones beat Michigan, a team that Orr had coached and even took to the 1976 title game. He left MU in 1980.

WORST NICKNAME: The Utah Utes.

ANNOUNCER'S NIGHTMARE: An East regional semifinal game will feature the Duke Blue Devils

Devils honored at school assembly

By Dave Whaley
Staff writer

VENICE — "After watching the action in Champaign over the weekend, I realize the state title game was played at Lantz Gym on Tuesday."

That comment was made in a letter from Ken Crawford, head basketball coach at Teutopolis High School, the Illinois Class A boys basketball champions. The letter was to Coach Clinton Harris and the Venice Red Devils coach.

The Devils were honored at a school assembly Thursday inside the gym where they did not lose a game all year and have not lost since 1984.

Crawford and a lot of other people got a look at Jesse Hall and the Red Devils March 4 at Eastern Illinois University's Lantz Gym.

Although Venice dropped a heart-breaking 75-73 game to the Wooden Shoes, observers came away talking about Hall's 35-point effort and how the Devils nearly knocked off the No. 1 team in the state.

But the focus at the assembly was not on Hall. Instead, the team as a whole was congratulated for the season and special recognition was given the team's four seniors (Ed Ware, Judious Kizeart, Eric Owens and Roy Grear).

The guest list included Alvester Salmond of the Venice School Board, 3rd Ward Alderman John Ervin (representing Mayor Tyrone Echols), Wade James of the Madison-Venice Rotary Club, Roger Lyons of the Madison County Urban League, Carolyn Wilson of the Venice PTA and the Rev. John Henry Williams of the Venice Park Board.

Boston has Larry Bird, Philadelphia has Julius Erving,

Chicago has Michael Jordan, Los Angeles has (Kareem) Abdul-Jabbar and even Magic (Johnson), but none of them can say they have the Venice Red Devils," Williams said in his typically fiery fashion.

Venice High School Principal John Rush said he had "made the mistake" of sitting next to Williams at the Vandallia Sectional.

"When he yelled, I yelled," Rush said. "Here he is again and I'm just getting my voice back."

Other letters of congratulations were read from Bradley University Coach Dick Versace; Howard Dickman of the University of Connecticut; Rich Herrin, head coach of Southern Illinois University of Carbondale; Ken Perkins, former Venice High principal now at Waterloo High; and Rick Samuels, basketball coach at EIU.

Crawford said he realized that Venice gave the Wooden Shoes their toughest game of the year en route to a 33-0 mark and the title. And the letters received showed that people from all around are taking notice of the Devils, especially Hall, who is a major college prospect.

Other speakers included Karen Mosby, president of the Venice High Student Council, and Juanita Long, cheerleader sponsor. The cheerleaders were also recognized for their support all year.

NOTES: Harris said Ware has not made any decision yet about college, but that he will definitely be playing somewhere. Meanwhile, the letters continue to pour in pursuit of Hall. SIU (Carbondale and Edwardsville), St. Louis University, Drake, Louisville, Illinois and, most recently, Michigan State are among those who have inquired about adding No. 23 to their team for the 1987-88 season.

Hall, Ware all-conference selections

Jesse Hall and Ed Ware of Venice have been named to the Illinois-Gateway all-conference team.

Hall and Ware led the Red Devils to the conference title with a 7-1 league mark. The Devils finished with a 25-6 mark overall and a berth in the Class A Super-Sectional.

Hall, a 6-2 junior, finished the season with a 26.1 scoring average, the tops in the Metro East area. He also had 312 rebounds in 31 games, an average of 10.1 rebounds per game, fifth in the Metro East. His 81 steals ranked him sixth in the area, while his 83 assists were 21st.

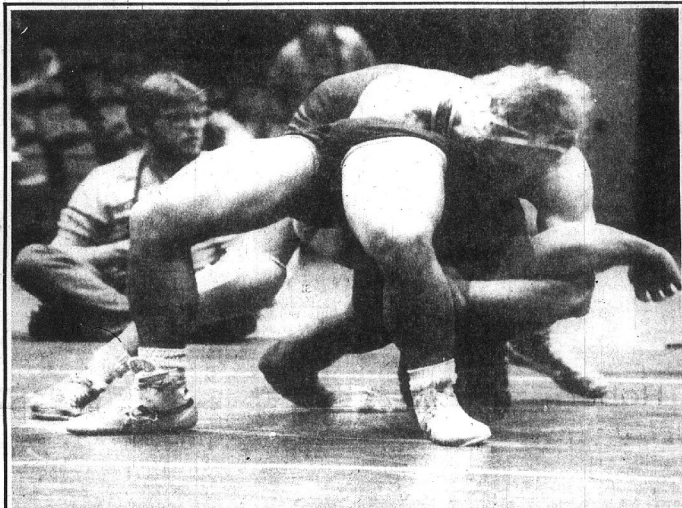

Called the "best junior in the area" by his coach, Clinton Harris, Hall made an incredible 70 percent of his field goal attempts on the year.

Ware, a 6-1 senior, finished the year with a 16.7 scoring average. His 190 rebounds, for a 6.1 average, put him in the top 30 in that category. He was ninth in the Metro East with 71 steals. The slender forward also connected on 63 percent of his field goals.

Also named to the first team were Todd Daube and David Rhodes of Metro-East Lutheran, the only team to deal Venice a conference loss, and Eric Kramper of Highland St. Paul. Daube is a 6-1 junior who averaged 16 points and seven assists. Rhodes, also a senior, averaged 15 points and nine rebounds.

The second team featured Venice center Judious Kizeart and guard Dale Turner, Mike Riffel and Jim Meredith of Highland St.

National tourney

COUGAR WRESTLER. Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville wrestler Alan Grammer, who came on top in a match this season, placed fifth in the 128-pound class at the NCAA championships at Iowa City over the weekend. Iowa, the top-rated team in the nation, won its ninth consecutive team title. The Hawkeyes, coached by former-Olympian Dan Gable, scored an NCAA record 158 team points. Iowa had five individual titlists. Oklahoma was second and Oklahoma State fourth. Grammer, a two-time national champion, was invited to the tournament based on his performance at the NCAA Division II championships at the SIU-E Vandalabene Center.

Cougars prepare for Florida with three wins

Each spring, an unusual emotion grabs the average college student, both female and male, which draws them toward the southland, either Florida or California, for the annual Spring Break.

It's an urge something like that which grabs the little lemmings in their mad rush to the ocean, but a whole lot more fun. It's the girls in their bikinis and the boys quaffing their suds, all generously mixed with the sand on the sun-soaked beaches, that combine to make it a wonderful vacation.

But this year, the members of the varsity baseball squad at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville have grabbed a big lead over most of their northern mates. They are off to a rip-roaring start in their annual trip to the south. And, that even before they have taken a step toward Florida.

Over the past weekend, Coach Garry (Bo) Collins' team took a giant step toward posting another winning season by walloping the Badgers of the University of Wisconsin in three out of four games.

Sports of All Sorts

by Al Barnes

They dropped the first game of the series 3-2, but then swept the remaining three games 5-1, 7-6 and 4-0. The first two games were Saturday and the last two were Sunday.

Both days were beautiful and sunny, warm and ideal for baseball, even better than you would expect down in Florida.

Instead of waiting until after their long and weary trip south to play their first game, Collins decided to try something new for two reasons.

First, he wanted to play the first game when not tired out after a long trip, and second, he wanted to play a school that was in the same stage of condition as the Cougars, that is, with no games under their belts.

The Cougar baseball team has annually made the trip south since 1969. I was with that team and can vividly remember how tired all the members of the team were after driving two days and taking the field at Jacksonville University for a doubleheader.

It wasn't surprising that we were extremely lucky to win even one game in four in that series.

For, you see, Jacksonville had already played 26 games. When they took the field against us, they were already 24-2 on the season. And since we had had an extremely bitter winter, it was the first time we had trod the grass.

Of course, it was the same for all the northern schools. The host southern teams were all primed and ready for the damn yankees, as it were, and I can't remember a time when any mercy was shown us.

Some of the northern teams' managers attempted to equal it up by either not counting the losses on their records or simply by listing the southern games as "exhibitions." Neither out was for SIUE Coach Roy Lee. He'd have no part with such a sleazy solution because, he said, if the school was decent enough to invite us to their place, the least he could do was count the final result.

Within a couple of years, the NCAA stepped in and ruled that if a school was a member of that august body, the game must be counted. Anyway, Coach Collins found out last week that he has one fine team. In the final game Sunday, southpaw Tony Duenas threw a two-hit shutout. Freshman Phil Little of Bethalto, a sensation at shortstop, went on a rampage at bat, hitting safely in eight of 13 at-bats, and Granite City's Daren Depew laid claim to the No. 1 catcher's job as he caught three of the four games and spelled Duenas at first in the finale when the hard-throwing lefty was on the mound.

Mike Bertagnoli, Rich Fletcher and Tom Klenke look like the outfield the Cougars have ever had. Also back from last year are Collinsville's Steve Bloemmer and Todd Miller.

With Collins starting his eighth season at SIUE, and the Cougars better prepared for their southern trip, the chances are good they can better their 1985 record of 36-15-1.

Shallow water spinnerbait fishing

By Larry Bulus

Staff writer

As a youngster I fished spinnerbaits plain, without either a "stinger" hook or a wigly trailer. This was not as far back as the Pleistocene Era, but was still long before plastic trailers came on the market.

Nowadays the market is loaded with spinnerbaits and wiggling trailers to hang onto them, and the use of "stinger" hooks is common. Pork rinds of every conceivable size, shape and color are available, as are plastic creations with serpentine bodies and wigly little legs. They add both action and bulk to a spinnerbait and annually lure many sag-bellied old bass to den walls.

For the past two years I've used a Mister Twister tail on my spinnerbaits with excellent results. The combination I most often use is a three-eighths ounce white or yellow spinnerbait with a "stinger" hook slipped over the main hook and held in place by a small rubber washer made for the purpose. I thread the thick body part of the plastic tail onto the trailer hook snank so the action part of the thin, curved tail begins at the hook's bend.

This makes for a rather long lure but it's an action-packed lure that gets more strikes than any combination I've used. I prefer Mister Twister tails in black, yellow and white, but use black most often.

And with two needle sharp hooks, about the only strikes I miss are the occasional fish that hit the overhead spinners.

When the water is still chilly in early spring I use a slow retrieve with spinnerbaits, often casting back over the same place two or three times to give a sluggish fish ample opportunity to seize the lure. Being cold-blooded, a fish's body takes on the same temperature as the water around it, and until water temperatures rise above 50 degrees bass aren't very active.

When a bass slams into a rapidly moving lure he helps set the hook but with a soft "take" on a falling spinnerbait, you've got to do all the hook setting yourself, and you can't be timid.

semifinal in Dallas on March 29. The other semifinal will pit Louisville and Kentucky.

versus the DePaul Blue Demons.

The tourney, however, also had its drawbacks: A weekend of Brent Musburger and his colorful neckties is almost too much to stomach.

Musburger ran out of colorful phrases to describe all the upsets. He just repeating "It was a buzzer heater."

Brent held down the fort in the main CBS studios while guys like Billy Packer, Gary Bender and Jim Brown were shipped off to Charlotte, N.C., Long Beach and Minneapolis, Minn.

The regional finals are this weekend in four sites: East Rutherford, Kansas City, Atlanta and Houston.

Perhaps the best game of all will be the North Carolina-Louisville matchup in the West. The West is considered to be the weakest region, with 10 of the 16 teams assigned having been placed there by the tournament selection committee.

The Final Four: I'm sure the network sponsors are screaming for a final game pitting Cleveland State and Auburn. Some excitement there. (All right, a quick show of hands. How many people actually know that Auburn is located in Alabama?) Yeah, just what I thought.

It looks as though Duke and Kansas will meet in one

All-conference

Paul and John Hampton of Livingston.

Players earning honorable mention are Vincent Harris of Louisville, Jeff Augustine and Paul Pague of Livingston, Denny Dooley and Alex Radea of Worden, Loyal Dozier of Metro-East, Lutheraan and Daren Twyford of Highland St. Paul.

NOTES: East St. Louis Assumption will join the Illini-Gateway Conference next season but will not be part of the league's basketball schedule until 1987-88.

Invitations have also been extended to Alton Marquette and Waterloo Gibault. Marquette and Assumption would remain independent in football because none of the other schools have football teams.

Assumption has been invited to participate at the Illini-Gateway track meet this spring, but actual conference competition will not occur until next season in baseball, softball and volleyball.

Frangouls ends season with 24 victories

Sophomore Jon Frangouls, a 1984 graduate of Granite City High School, finished the 1985-86 wrestling season with a 24-13-1 record on the Southwest Missouri State team.

Frangouls was the second leading winner on the Bear squad this year. His 24 wins came wrestling in the 177-pound class, where he placed sixth in the recent NCAA West Regional hosted by SMSU.

In addition to his fine record, Frangouls also placed second at the Labatte J.C. Open, second at the St. Louis Open and fifth at the Oklahoma Open.

The Bears, under Mike McCarthy, finished the year with a 1-12-1 dual mark.
